The monument which is to be erected by the state of Illinois in memory of George Rogers Clark at Quincy has been completed by the sculptor, Charles J. Mulligan, of Chicago, and now awaits the day of unveiling, May 12.
The statue is of a bronze figure against a massive granite monolith standing twenty feet high, and is to be placed on a point rising 250 feet above the city, overlooking twenty miles of the Mississippi valley. With arms crossed and hand bared the figure stands, resting slightly against the stone, gazing with an intensity born of hope and despair toward a bend in the river fifteen miles distant, waiting for that aid that never arrived from the parent state.

BRIDEGROOM ASSAULTS MINISTER WHO PERFORMS CEREMONY AND IS FINED

From the hymeneal altar to police court bar was the quick transition of Louis Leavell, of Marshall county yesterday, and after paying a fee to the minister for marrying him, he paid fine for assaulting minister. The officiating minister was Dr. B. T. Hall. Leavell was united to Miss Frances Parsley yesterday afternoon. As is his custom, after the ceremony, Dr. Hall handed the marriage certificate to the bride. That action was not entirely satisfactory to Leavell.

CALLOWAY'S CROP MAY BE TAKEN BY IMPERIAL BUYER

Negotiations Now on Between Representative of Association and Company.

Prominent Young Couple Married in a Bus.

THE MURRAY BIBLE INSTITUTE.

Murray, Ky., Feb. 18. (Special.)—Farmers and business men alike are anxiously awaiting the outcome of a conference tomorrow between officials of the tobacco association and buyers for the Imperial company, for an agreement is made as to prices. It is believed 1,500,000 pounds of the 1908 tobacco will be sold and the growers will get their money as the tobacco is delivered.

The association is represented by W. B. Blakemore and the Imperial buyers by John Hodge. If the deal is made the large Downs warehouse will be utilized in redrying and handling the tobacco.

This is the first year that a large amount of tobacco, suitable for the English trade, was ever grown in Calloway county, and this was caused by the dry season. Since the quality of the 1908 crop became known, hundreds of samples were brought to Murray and the English buyers requested to come and examine them, which they are doing today.

Married in Bus.

An unusual place for a marriage ceremony was selected by Mr. Thomas Howard, a prosperous citizen of Henry county, Tennessee, and Mrs. Walena Gamlin, of Murray. The couple were married in the bus in which they were conveyed to the station, the witnesses being a jolly bunch of traveling men, who chanced to be passengers on the vehicle.

Pool Room License.

The pool room license reduction ordinance will be up for final disposition when the council meets Friday night, and it is likely a large crowd will be present to see the fight. It is believed the church people will be successful in having the license raised to $600 per year, though they may have trouble before they gain their point.

Bible Institute.

The Bible institute at the Baptist church is drawing large crowds since the weather has become milder. Many prominent ministers are attending and three services are held each day. The institute closes Friday night.

Ladies Entertain Brotherhood.

After the initiation of a large class Tuesday night by the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers and Firemen at their hall, Twelfth street and Broadway, the Ladies Auxiliary entertained the members with a pie social. Music and games were enjoyed also.

State Lays Substantial Grounds For Theory of Conspiracy to Kill Carmack in Coopers' Trial Today

Stenographer Tells of Conference Prior to Shooting—"It's All Over Daughter," Said Cooper.

Nashville, Tenn., Feb. 18.—The assassination of Carmack had long been expected and considered almost inevitable by the family of Duncan Cooper was the conclusion drawn by many today at the completion of the testimony.

The sensation of the trial today was furnished by attorneys for the defense, who developed in the testimony that after the tragedy, while the clothing of Carmack was being examined, a rubber pistol shield was found in the pocket in his overcoat, despite the fact that the clothing had been minutely examined by the undertaker before the state's attorney and again at his own establishment. The defense implied the holster delayed Carmack in pulling his revolver and he couldn't shoot quick enough.

Questions by the state's attorney left the inference that the clothing had been tampered with by the defense. The closing hours today indicated the state has about exhausted its witnesses and the trial would end sooner than expected.

"It is all over daughter; Robin has killed Carmack." This is said to be the telephone conversation of Duncan Cooper and his daughter after the killing, according to the story told on the witness stand today.

Nashville, Feb. 18.—Startling developments expected in the Cooper trial, and brought great crowds of people in the court room today. It was rumored the state would call a Louisiana man, whose name has not been connected with the case. It is said his testimony will be the most important presented by the state. The state decided not to call W. H. Bray, the Missouri banker, and eye witness of the killing. The defense is keeping the names of witnesses secret.

Foundation for Conspiracy.

Miss Daisy Lee, laid the foundation upon which the state will base its contention that the slaying of Carmack was the result of a conspiracy. Miss Lee is a stenographer in the office of James C. Bradford, one of the attorneys for the defense. Robin Cooper had his office with Bradford's law firm. Miss Lee, trembling with fright and almost sick with worry, told how, on the morning of November

Another Flaw.

Washington, Feb. 18.—Dalzell offered a resolution intended to unravel the parliamentary tangle over the salary of secretary of state. A new technical flaw was found in his resolution and the house again is tied up over the way in which the salary may be reduced to allow Knox to get the cabinet position.

Thirteenth Venire

San Francisco, Feb. 18.—The thirteenth venire in the Calhoun trial appeared in court today.

AMEND PETITION FOR RECEIVER OF PLANTERS' POOL

In order to make the first amended petition to the suit of Lee Walters and others against the Planters' Protective association more explicit, a second amended petition has been filed in circuit court. Attorneys for the defense objected to the filing of the second amended petition this morning, but Judge Reed overruled the objection and the second petition was filed.

It is alleged in the amended petition that Leo Walters delivered to the association 5,025 pounds of good leaf tobacco, appraised at 10 cents a pound, and also delivered 6,720 pounds of good lug tobacco, valued at 7 cents a pound, which was worth $621.15. It is charged that the officers of the tobacco association wrongfully and unlawfully converted to their own use 598 pounds of the tobacco valued at $59.80. During the same year it is alleged by J. M. Fuller, another plaintiff, that he delivered 3,995 pounds of tobacco worth more than $100 and that the officers of the association unlawfully converted more than 260 pounds of tobacco to their own use.

Another charge is that the association loaned to J. M. Fuller money at a rate over 6 per cent, and it is sought to recover $5.25 as usury.

SMEDLEYS BRING SUIT TO RECOVER VALUABLE GEMS

Diana Smedley with her husband, Hiram Smedley, joint plaintiff, filed suit this morning in circuit court against George R. Davis for the recovery of five solitaire diamonds valued at $1,550. In the petition the plaintiff asserts she is the owner of the five diamonds, four being set in a ring and valued at $300 each, while the fifth diamond is a stud and is valued at $350. It is alleged that Mr. Davis unlawfully and wrongfully holds the diamonds and that he secured them not for any tax or fine that Smedley owed, or order of court, nor were they seized under any execution, distress warrant or attachment. The diamonds are alleged to have been secured by Davis within a year after the suit was filed.

An order of delivery was secured and placed in the hands of the sheriff for service.

The jewels are said to be the property of Mrs. Smedley, and are claimed to be held as security for borrowed money.

BAPTIST CHURCH SUFFICIENT FOR NEEDS IS LACKING

As Congregation Overcrowds Auditorium Deacons Discuss Edifice.

May Extend Present Building to Property Line.

WEST END CHURCH CONSIDERED

Another move is on foot among the members of the First Baptist church for the erection of a new church or for the enlargement of the present building at Fifth and Jefferson streets. Nothing definite has been done in either step, but the question is a live one in the congregation, and the deacons of the church have considered it. Owing to the large membership and the large attendance at practically every service, it is imperative that something be done towards seating the congregation.

The church is one of the oldest in the city and the only church with the main auditorium on the second floor. The church has been in use since 1866, having been used before the Civil war as a hospital. It is still in splendid condition, as far as safety is concerned, but it is merely a question of seating the audiences. The pastor, the Rev. M. E. Dodd, has suggested the plan of extending the church in the rear to the property line, which would make the church about 30 feet longer. Some members oppose this plan, as the contention is that the church would still be an old one.

Aside from the undetermined question of building a new church, the location can not be decided on. Many members want a new church erected at the present site, asserting that it will be better located. Other members want a new church built in the western part of the city. Several excellent locations have been suggested as appropriate for the new church. Still another plan advanced is for the present church building to be increased in size, while a new church is built in the western section of the city.

The difficulty of seating the congregations has reared the officers of the church, and doubtless something will be done in the near future. At special services, and frequently at the regular services, it has been necessary to place chairs in the aisles to seat congregation, while others have been turned away, owing to the lack of seating facilities. The placing of chairs in the aisles is disapproved by the officers of the church, as in case of a panic or fire it would interfere with the egress of the members.

BARDWELL FIRE CAUSES DAMAGE OF OVER $3,000

Bardwell, Ky., Feb. 18.—(Special.)—Fire of unknown origin destroyed the two-story business building of J. H. Lovelace about 2 o'clock this morning and damaged the lumber yard of W. G. Ward to the extent of $3,000. The building was valued at $1,500, with $500 insurance. All the regalia of the Woodmen of the World on the second floor was destroyed. NEW MYSTERY IN WINDY CITY

Woman Found Tied to Legs of Bath Tub in Hotel.

Police Not Convinced That Her Story of Being Attacked on Street and Placed in Tub is True.

FEAR SHE IS VICTIM OF PLOT

Chicago, Feb. 17.—One of the most mysterious cases with which the police have had to deal in many years developed in the Wellington hotel when the unconscious form of Miss Ella Gingles was found lashed to the supports of the bathtub on the fourth floor.

When a chambermaid at the hotel on her rounds reached the bath room on the fourth floor she found the door locked from the inside with a bolt. Later the house carpenter removed the transom, crawled into the room and opened the door.

The light from the hallway revealed the body of the woman clad in a night gown, bound and fastened to the legs of the bath tub. The woman's face was cut and bruised; she was gagged and apparently suffering from laudanum poisoning.

The bath tub was half full of bloody water. When revived she told a story of having been attacked on the street by a man and woman and placed in a cab. The woman she names is one by whom she was employed as a lace maker and who some time ago accused her of theft of lace, but the case was not brought to trial.

The man, Miss Gingles' friends claim, is well known in several states. While the woman's friends believe she is the victim of a plot and that a serious crime has been committed, the police are inclined to question many portions of her story, and believe that some of her statements conflict.

February 22—Louis Mann in "The Man Who Stood Still."

Louis Mann in St. Louis.

The St. Louis Globe-Democrat says of Louis Mann's new play, "The Man Who Stood Still," now playing in St. Louis:

"The Man Who Stood Still" is a wonderfully fine, strong play. In the first moments of elation created by this work one may easily declare it one of the very best dramas ever produced in this country. It possesses the elements of a great story—all the way through its interesting and significant course one can transform it into literature, and there is nothing in plot or incident or character-drawing which needs the special craft of the theater to make the whole thing true and logical. Moreover, it is being presented by the strongest playing organization seen here this season, including a new Louis Mann—not the Mann who used to give his time to the most trivial of comedy

WRONG BREAKFAST.

Change Gave Rugged Health.

Many persons think that for strength, they must begin the day with a breakfast of meat and other food. But a man who has been weak and who can easily discover for himself—

A. W. Va. carpenter's experience may benefit others. He writes:

"I used to be a very heavy breakfast eater but finally indigestion caused me such distress, I became afraid to eat anything."

"My wife suggested a trial of Grape-Nuts and as I had to eat something or starve, I concluded to take her advice. She fixed me up a dish and I remarked at the time that the quality was all right, but the quantity was too small—I wanted a saucerful."

"But she said a small amount of Grape-Nuts went a long way and that I must eat it according to directions. So I started in with Grape-Nuts and cream, 2 soft boiled eggs and some crisp toast for breakfast."

"I cut out meats and a lot of other stuff I had been used to eating all my life and was gratified to see that I was getting better right along. I concluded I had struck the right thing and stuck to it. I had not only been eating improper food, but too much."

"I was working at the Carpenter's trade at that time and thought that unless I had a hearty breakfast with plenty of meat, I would play out before dinner. But after a few days of my 'new breakfast' I found I could do more work, felt better in every way, and now I am not bothered with indigestion."

Your Druggist Says

Ask Your Druggist

The great army of American druggists are mighty intelligent and well-educated men.

They know the properties of drugs and medicines, and have experience with all kinds of troubles, which people come into the store to ask relief for.

So their practical knowledge is very valuable, and their advice is worth a great deal to all sick people.

If you know your druggist well enough to ask his advice for your female trouble, do so, and he will tell you that thousands of women have written letters, telling of relief obtained from taking Cardui.

In his experience, he has heard and read of many cases of female weakness, which have been relieved or cured by Cardui. So, when you ask his opinion, he will not offer a prescription, but will probably say: "Take Cardui." And you will do well to follow his advice.

Cardui is advised in all the common forms of womanly trouble, due to disorders peculiar to females.

It has been found to relieve or prevent headache, backache, side ache, dragging sensations, nervousness, irritability, irregularity, and general female weakness and misery.

Many thousands of sick ladies have been restored to health, by the use of Cardui, and have written to tell of the good it did them.

Cardui is composed of pure, vegetable ingredients—hence has no harmful effects, like many mineral compounds. It acts gently and naturally, is good for young and old, and should be in every lady's home, even if not an invalid, to take during her bad days.

What others, who have tried Cardui, say about it, should surely be of interest to you, as showing what you may expect it to do for you. Hence this letter from Mrs. Temple Clark, of Timberville, Miss., one of the thousands who have written in similar strain, will, we hope, be read by you.

She says: "Cardui has been worth more to me than a carload of silver."

If it had not been for Cardui, I would have been dead. I love a dollar, but I have never seen one that I think as much of, as I do of a bottle of Cardui. I now keep it in my house, as regularly as I do coal oil or coffee, and have done so for years.

"Some years ago, I jumped off a horse and had a mishap, and for about 4 years after that, I suffered intense agony, irregularities, bearing-down pains, etc. At last I was induced to try Cardui, which cured me, and now I am well and happy."

"I am sure that Cardui will cure other sick ladies as it has me."

Cardui is carried, as a standard remedy, on the shelves of all reliable drug stores. Your druggist will recommend it, and will gladly sell you a bottle, with full directions for use, on the inside of the wrapper.

If in doubt, ask him.

MRS. TEMPLE CLARK,
Timberville, Miss.

notes; but the real actor who was partially foreshadowed in Julie Bonbon, seen here two or three years ago.

"Mr. Mann brought his new play to the Century last night, and the result was tremendously gratifying. The Man Who Stood Still will make a very broad appeal, and it will be liked best by those who have the gift of true sentiment—who know that for them the best things in life are the simpler forms of domestic happiness, the mutual helpfulness of men and women who still have faith in their hearts, and the loyalty which is bigger than the little frailties which creep into almost every day's intercourse. Or for that multitude who must laugh when they go to the theater there will be abundant satisfaction, since there is some of the most genuine comedy in the play that has ever put on the stage."

"The author of this new work possesses a quality that promises much for the better forms of dramatic invention. He knows how to link pathos and merriment together in so natural a way that the trick of it is overlooked—or rather it ceases to be a trick and becomes a shrewd reading of human nature. He has merely refused to turn a blind eye to any of the ingredients of life, and the result quite naturally is something not wholly comical at any time, and never altogether sad. He has a genius for character drawing, and there is individuality in all his types. Each is in a way peculiar, and not one is unnatural."

"The theme of the story—the plot itself one may leave to those who go to the theater—is that of the ancient warfare between that which is expedient and that which is right—the wisdom of man and the wisdom of God. John Kraus is an old German who, in his moments of discouragement, finds that in America 'whatever succeeds is right and whatever fails is wrong.' He is brought into harsh contact with the spirit of youth and progress, but he continues to stand still. How is he rewarded by keeping the faith that was in him is shown in a beautiful way."

"The company is beyond criticism. Robert A. Fisher, as a kind, stubborn old German, is touching and comical by turns, and always intensely human. Miss Lillian Sinnott, as the daughter of this same old German, is a revelation in naturalness and unexpectedness. Emily Ann Wellman handled a number of difficult emotional passages with the precision of a true artist. Miss Mathilde Cottrell warns one's heart by the goodness of her personality—as it is revealed in her role. P. S. Barret is a fine, vigorous type of Irishman, such as we all know or ought to know, and John Charles, in a subtle role, is a thoroughly disconcerting actor."

"There is so much to commend in the work that one may not go into details, but finally it should be said that those who miss the pinochle game in the third act will have failed in seeing as delicious a bit of comedy and character study as was ever put into a play."

The work production of "The Land of Nod" is so well and favorably known to theater-goers of Paducah that the announcement of its presentation here on Wednesday, February 24, matinee and night, will be received with more than ordinary pleasure.

"Just a Woman's Way," the next attraction at the Kentucky on Friday night, has a complete scenic embellishment that makes this strong drama seem one of real life to the interested spectator. Incidental to the action of the play, an accurate representation of one of New York's most dreaded dives is given.

"A Pair of Country Kids" will appear at the Kentucky next Saturday, matinee and night.

Ernest A. Harrington has staged many plays during his years of experience as actor and manager, but never did he meet with such phenomenal success as when he presented "Little Miss Blue Bird." Miss Beatrice Kerney has taken the leading role in this play.

"I have suffered with piles for thirty years. Ten years ago I began taking Cascarets and in the course of a week I noticed the piles began to disappear and as the end of six weeks they did not trouble me at all. WORLD'S LARGEST PORT.

Supreme for Two Centuries—Trade for 1807 Over Two and One-Half Million.

For two hundred years London has been the greatest port in the world. The tonnage entered there in 1907 was 11,166,367 tons, and 8,598,979 tons were cleared, a total of 16,665,346 tons. The total trade of the port reaches the vast sum of $2,430,000,000. New York's total in 1907 was $1,709,164,423.

But while London maintains its supremacy, the distance between it and its foreign rivals is diminishing. Even among English ports a more progressive policy has been followed by Liverpool, Southampton and Plymouth. Liverpool has recently spent $25,000,000 on her facilities, Plymouth $12,500,000 and Southampton $10,000,000. London's rivals in the Continent have also been active. Hamburg has recently spent $75,000,000 on improvements and contemplated spending $6,250,000 more, while Antwerp proposes to spend $35,000,000 on docks and $22,500,000 on a canal. London in recent years has spent almost nothing while its docks and wharves are deteriorating. —New York Tribune.

The Cotton Situation as Observed by Henry Clews, New York Expert.

New York, Feb. 18.—(Special.)—The sharp advance in quotations for future contracts in New York and for spot cotton in the southern markets since the Christmas holidays has naturally been followed by an increase in the crop movement from plantations and more liberal offerings to American spinners and to exporters. The recovery is equal to from $5 to $7 per bale and has paid those who held their cotton through the depression of last fall handsomely for their tenacity. Holders of contracts have also been realizing steadily on every good rally since the last census report was issued; these offerings, however, have been easily absorbed by the shorts and by other buyers to unlock hedge sales made earlier in the season, when the crop movement was running at record-breaking figures and exaggerated estimates of the crop prevailed in the minds of many people in the cotton trade. These large transactions to cover contracts notwithstanding the rising market by spot houses prove that the advance has been a healthy one, being the result of the increased demand for immediate deliveries from European and American spinners, coupled with the practical withdrawal of all advantageous offers from the south when the increased demand set in. Since quotations for spots touched 9½ cents to 9¾ cents in the south there has been a noticeable lull in the demand, and many are led to believe that this will tend to check the speculative fever in the absence of any new bullish departments; but it is more likely that the present inactivity is only temporary and sooner or later spinners will resume buying, whether the market be lower or higher, as reserve stocks this season have been small, and consumption will be much larger than estimates current earlier in the year. Local stocks of cotton at one time stood at comparatively high figures, but have been gradually reduced, owing to the absorption by spinners, and it is expected that they will be further heavily drawn upon during March or possibly earlier, and that in consequence the stock on hand will be reduced to about 100,000 bales. It is also known that the south has large contracts outstanding for February and March delivery, which should assure a continued good demand for spot cotton for some time to come. As present quotations in the south are above New York parity, there is not much danger of free shipments to this port unless the local market continues to advance, or holders of spots make some price concessions. While the cotton goods market is only moderately active and business is below expectations, there is a marked recovery from the depression of last season, and the outlook for the future is more encouraging. One of the main causes of the inactivity in dry goods is the tariff agitation in congress, although New England cotton manufacturers have recently been assured that no radical changes are probable in the cotton goods schedules. The uncertainty in this respect, however, has caused a general loss of trade and orders for future delivery have been placed for small lots only; on the other hand, many mills at present are unable to supply the demand for certain lines of goods for immediate delivery to the small dealers. It is to be said, however, that print cloths have been advancing and normal conditions prevail in that section of the trade. Eastern and western jobbers have steadily supplied the demand for all description of dry goods from stocks on hand, contracting for much less than in previous years. The opinion prevails in the large dry goods district that stocks will dwindle to comparatively small proportions by the end of the season. Banking institutions confirm the report of small holdings of stocks of reserve cotton goods by the absence of jobbers' mercantile paper, which would be in evidence if stocking up of merchandise were going on. Out-of-town buyers are arriving in New York earlier than usual to transact business in the cotton goods line, a positive indication of a general exhaustion of stocks among the retailers. The Manchester market is very steady with an improved demand from China and it is noticed that exports of manufactured goods are also increasing. One of the most important market factors of a bullish nature is the unprecedented demand for new crop contracts for European account on the general theory that stocks remaining at the end of the present season will consist of very desirable lots of cotton easily taken care of by the large spot houses. Moreover, with a steady increase in consumption another large crop will be necessary to prevent a further advance later in the year.

From present indications there appears to be a disposition to reduce the acreage this spring. In some of the new boll weevil districts; for instance, in the Mississippi valley, where conditions are conducive to the propagation and spread of this pest. Considerable attention is directed to the great southwestern territory owing to the prolonged winter drouth and lack of seasoning in the ground. Should this condition be followed by excessive rains during planting time, cotton would have a poor start in that important section, and unfavorable developments later would unquestionably cause an additional advance, as the speculative element still appears partial to the long side of the market. Any indication, therefore, of a moderate yield for next season would be followed by increased ventures on the buying side, even at a higher level. At the present writing, however, the chances for favorable or adverse weather conditions are about equal, and the weather, therefore, will be an important factor in determining the course of the market this spring.

Prices are now more than one cent above the recent low level and in consequence the market is inclined to display more hesitation. Judging by the present outlook, however, an active market for contracts can be relied upon. In the end the course of prices must be governed by the usual law of supply and demand, much depending, as previously stated, on weather developments. In the meantime, it would appear that no great risk would be incurred in making purchases on the dips, as the current range is still not a high one, all things considered.

SHIPMENTS OF LIQUOR CURBED

House Passes Knox Bill, Regulating Interstate Transportation.

Truthfully and Ship to Home Fide Consignees Plainly Addressed—Abolish Capital Punishment.

THE LABEL ON ALL PACKAGES.

Washington, Feb. 18.—The liquor legislation was the subject of consideration in the house. When the penal code bill was taken up, Humphreys offered an amendment agreed upon by the house leaders to regulate the interstate shipment of liquors.

The amendment, which is the Knox bill that passed the senate forbids the transportation of liquor in interstate commerce unless it is consigned to bona fide consignee and unless the package is labeled plainly with the name of the consignee and the exact character of the contents is shown.

The amendment prohibits the shipments of liquor C. O. D.

Bartholdt, of Missouri, sought to amend the amendment so as to include "elder, so-called temperance drinks and all beverages containing more than three per cent alcohol."

The Bartholdt amendment was defeated 32 to 94. The Humphreys amendment was adopted 129 to 40. Speaker Cannon took his place on the floor and voted every time with the "temperance forces."

Capital Punishment.

All attempt to abolish capital punishment as a penalty under the federal laws blocked conclusion of consideration of the penal code bill in the house sitting in the committee of the whole. The bill was taken up after the house became entangled in the Knox eligibility question and had laid the question aside for the day.

The most important amendment incorporated in the bill was the one to regulate shipment of intoxicating liquors.

McCall, of Massachusetts, led the fight against capital punishment and when he was voted down, made a point no quorum.

Just before this, 25 to 27, the committee had declined to substitute electrocution for hanging as the death penalty. The motion to take a recess was opposed by the enemies of the bill and a filibuster ensued. The doors were finally closed and the sergeant at arms sent after absent members.

Nearly two hours later, 7:50, when Madden, of Illinois, arrived, a roll call quorum was secured and the house was declared in recess.

Naval Bill Passes Senate.

Washington, Feb. 18.—The naval bill, carrying $136,000,000, was passed by the senate, after having been under consideration three days. The bill was today changed by restoration of the house provision for two battleships of 26,000 tons displacement, to cost $6,000,000 each.

An ineffectual effort was made to defeat the amendment for the restoration of the marine corps to the battleships and cruisers of the navy, which was placed in the measure while the senate was proceeding in the committee of the whole.

During the last hours of the session today Lafayette severely criticized the methods of the navy, declaring that senatorial influence in the work of the department caused unbusinesslike development of the navy yards and stations.

ECZEMA CURE A MIRACLE?

—NO, JUST SOUND SCIENCE.

Physicians now admit the superior value of simple medicines for all diseases.

For eczema and other skin diseases certainly nothing in the world could be simpler than oil of wintergreen, carefully combined with such well known healing and antiseptic substances as thymol, glycerine, etc. Read this letter:

"A few years ago eczema covered my limbs, part of my body and began breaking out on my face.

"I began using oil of wintergreen mixed with thymol and glycerine in D. D. D. Prescription. Used five bottles and was cured sound and well. My druggist said it looked almost like a miracle to him, but he explained to me that the use of this oil of wintergreen was just sound science.

"I have been almost a year ago and I see no sign of the disease returning.

Daily Thought.
Fire, in the test of gold; adversity of strong men—Erenea.

If any church members go to Hades, they will blame the preacher.

A former sheriff of Breathitt county died in bed last week. He must have been a man of quick action.

Fame does not withhold herself from the righteous. If one lives according to scriptural commandments he will win recognition, if for nothing else, as the oldest citizen of the county.

A Texas legislator has introduced a bill, proscribing politics in the pulpit, and providing a severe penalty. The advantage of the measure is that it makes it incumbent for some politician to attend divine services.

The city should oil Broadway to the city limits west, and it would be a good plan for the county to oil the Broadway road, as far as Wallace park. There is much pleasure riding out that way, and much travel from the country. It would add much to the attractiveness of Paducah during the summer if the county and city would co-operate in this.

Congressman Swager Sherley, of Louisville, speaking against the equipment of public baths in Washington said: "The fibre, the moral backbone of this great nation should not be undermined by a pampering system imported from abroad." We're glad Ollie James didn't presume such sentiment would tickle his constituents.

OUR IMPROVED NEWS SERVICE.
This week The Sun has doubled its news service. In addition to its special service from Kentucky, and the daily market reports. This gives The Sun the most comprehensive and accurate news service in Kentucky outside Louisville. Most of the news of the world happens in the day time, and the evening paper with a good service is enabled to furnish the news the day it happens. How well The Sun has been performing this service is attested by the rapidly increasing subscription list. The list in this city and surrounding towns has grown sufficiently in the last year to warrant the improved service.

THE PANAMA SITUATION.
If we may assume that a man to be elected president of the United States must have ordinary good sense, we may gain some encouragement from this Panama canal controversy. President Roosevelt and President-elect Taft, both of whom have seen the canal diggings and received the reports of competent engineers, favor the lock canal. Enemies of the administration in congress, who care more about discrediting the president than they do about either the good name of the country or its welfare, and southern newspapers, that care more about damaging the Republican administration than they do about the prosperity of the south, which is most deeply interested in the canal, are opposing the lock and dam plan.

Now the only personal benefit either President Roosevelt or President-elect Taft can hope to gain from the adoption of one plan or the other, is glory for the success of the achievement, and the only personal loss they can sustain is the loss of reputation. If this canal project is a failure, all else that President Roosevelt has achieved will be obscured in the one monumental blunder. If it succeeds it will be his greatest and most lasting monument. The same may be said of President-elect Taft, who, in addition to sharing the blame if it fails, must bear the additional shame of having simply followed in the blundering footsteps of his predecessor, after having made an inspection for the very purpose of ascertaining whether or not the lock and dam plan is feasible.

Now, taking that view, isn't it reasonable to suppose that President-elect Taft satisfied himself completely that the present plan and methods are proper? Taking that view, isn't it probable that President Roosevelt is perfectly satisfied that the lock and dam plan is best?

We know nothing about engineering, but we know as much as those senators and newspapers that are fighting the administration's plans. We know more realizing that we know nothing and relying on the good judgment of those to whose hands we entrusted the project. There was some excuse for the late Senator Morgan, of Alabama. He was an old man. The canal project was a pet of his. He favored the Nicaragua route; but when the time came to put the scheme on foot, his theories as to details were rejected. He was too old to readjust himself to other ways; he may not have been treated with as much courtesy as a member of the majority party would have been under the circumstances. Possibly, belonging to a perverse minority, his unrelenting attitude in regard to his own pet schemes made it necessary for the majority to run over him rough shod; but allowing for the element of human nature in all affairs, we can see for the aged senator an excuse for his opposition, and it does not dim in our eyes the part he played in urging the isthmian canal project.

But this latter day opposition is partisan, unpatriotic and foolish. Particularly foolish is it in the southern press to fight against a measure, that will draw commerce from the central states south instead of westward.

SOME STORIES AROUND TOWN

Some people who attended the automobile show at Chicago just for the pleasure of seeing what there was to see, were rather embarrassed, while others took it to be a good joke. Just at the time when you was wishing you had enough money to purchase a "skoot wagon" some neat looking young man would hand you a souvenir watch fob, on one side of which was the name of the company it represented and on the other side was the inscription, "Gee, it's hell to be poor."

One little boy in the public schools of this city took a good grade home last month in English. The teacher asked the pupils to think of the longest sentence they could and write it out on paper. After a few minutes the teacher called on several of her pupils to read their sentence and finally as she was almost around the class one of the smallest boys in the class got up and read "Penitentiary for life."

TRIO ARRESTED

CHARGED WITH STEALING SUI CASE AND MONEY.

Uniontown Man Visits Saloon With Chance Acquaintance and Is Robbed.

A trio of men, who have been hanging around First street and Broadway since their arrival in this city, about two weeks ago, were arrested for stealing $16, a suit case containing a new suit of clothes, a pair of trousers and several other small articles belonging to Walter Woodruff, of Uniontown. The trio was held to answer and bail fixed at $300 by Police Judge Cross on a charge of grand larceny. Woodruff came to this city yesterday morning on the Cowling and in the afternoon he got in the company of C. J. Moore. Moore did the polite thing and carried the suit case belonging to Woodruff, and after going in several different places the two wound up at a saloon at First street and Broadway. Moore left the suit case in the saloon and didn't say anything to Woodruff about it and immediately after the two were out of sight James Sheridan and Fred Harris, the other two members of the trio, made away with the grip and went through its contents. Moore shook the acquaintance of Woodruff and went back to the saloon and it was there that the men were arrested with Woodruff's clothes in their possession, but no trace could be found of the money that was taken out of Woodruff's pocket. The trio claim that Woodruff gave them the clothes to sell so that they could buy more drinks.

ber 9, the day of the tragedy, when she arrived at the office, she found Col. Cooper already there in conference with his son. She heard the Colonel denounce Carmack for using his (Cooper's) name and declared he had a right to protect himself.

Later she heard Col. Cooper apply to him (Carmack) epithets so vile that she cried when ordered to repeat them. The court permitted her to write them, and when they were read she covered her face with her hands.

Miss Lee then told how, at 3 p. m., there began a conference in Bradford's office between the two Coopers, Bradford and Adjutant General Tully Brown, of the State Guard. This conference lasted until 4 p. m., when it broke up and the Coopers left together. She said that there was a look of worry and trouble on the boy's face that she had never seen there before.

Heard Col. Cooper Phone.

Miss Lee's duty, among other things, was to answer the telephone. There are desk extensions into the private offices of members of the firm. It was her custom to answer the phone and call by an electric button such members of the firm as were wanted. The telephone bell itself was in none of these offices. A half an hour after the Coopers left the office the phone rang, and, as usual, Miss Lee answered it. She heard a voice say, "Is that you, Jim?" and heard Attorney Bradford say, "Yea." She hung up her receiver, but not before she recognized the voice as that of Colonel Cooper. A moment later she heard Bradford say over the phone, "And did Robin kill him? Well, I'll be right up there." She insisted that Bradford was not in the habit of answering the phone unless called by her. It appears to be the intent of the state to have the jury believe that a conference to slay Carmack was held and that the killing resulted from this conference.

Mrs. Burch's Maid.

The third witness was Miss Donie Braxter, a maid in the service of Mrs. Lucius Burch, a daughter of Col. Cooper, with whom he made his home. The witness heard Col. Cooper come into the Burch home about noon the day of the tragedy and heard him tell Mrs. Burch something that greatly excited the young wife. She heard Mrs. Burch say: "He will kill you, papa." And the father's reply: "He is as liable to be killed as I am." What over followed caused Mrs. Burch to become hysterical.

The defense made little effort to cross-examine these witnesses, except in a most perfunctory manner, and court adjourned with the testimony of the state's witnesses practically unassailed.

Described the Wounds.

W. G. Jones, who embalmed Senator Carmack's body, described how his firm was notified and how he went for the body. He was present when two physicians examined the body. The witness made notes on the wounds. One went into the left side and was cut out of the right side of the body below the shoulder. Another entered the left side of the abdomen and was cut out of the right side, five inches from the navel. The third entered the neck, half an inch to the left of the spine and was found under the tongue. The wounds on the body ranged downward.

Before Jones began to testify, Mrs.

STOMACH PRESCRIPTION CAUSES BIG SILE

(Chicago Record-Herald.)

The prescription for stomach trouble published in this paper some days ago has created a big stir in drug stores. The manager of the largest prescription drug store in the city says that they have filled this prescription hundreds of times and find it the very best they ever put up for stomach troubles. Here is the prescription; cut it out and keep it: If you do not need it yourself, hand it to some friend who is troubled with indigestion or dyspepsia: Compound Tincture of Cinchona, one ounce; Prose Compound, one ounce; Sherry Wine, half a pint. Mix together and take in teaspoonful doses before meals and at bed time in water. This druggist states it is the Prose Compound that is so valuable. It supplies the stomach with pancreatic juice and this is what digests what you eat, while the Cinchona and Wine act as a general stomach tonic.

Any first-class prescription druggist can fill this simple prescription, as all three ingredients will always be found in any well-stocked prescription drug store.

Carmack was taken from the room. It was feared that the sight of her husband's blood-stained garments and the description of his wounds would be more than she could bear.

"Have you the clothing taken from the body of the senator?" he was asked.

"I have."

The witness then opened a bag and produced the outer clothing, under garments, shirt and collar. The wounds were made by steel-jacketed, .32-calibre bullets, and bled very little externally. There were a few blood stains where the bullets entered and the hall which pierced the neck passed through the collar, but the latter showed no stain of blood.

Jurors Examined Clothes.

The bullets and the clothing were examined carefully and curiously by the jurors and then introduced into evidence. Jones was cross-examined very briefly and excused.

There were many women in the room and they strained every nerve to see the gruesome exhibits and hear the description of the wounds.

Jones was recalled later by the defense to tell what was in the senator's pockets. He was asked to search the overcoat and he did so, finding a rubber shield or scabbard for the barrel of a revolver. He said that he searched the pockets the day of the killing and found only a magazine and a paper.

The state then asked:

"Was that scabbard in the pocket when you got the body?"

"It was not."

"How did it get there?"

"I have no idea."

"Where were these clothes?"

"In the wardrobe at the undertaking rooms."

RELEASED BECAUSE HE HIT BALL TOO HARD.

Outfielder Mike Mitchell, of the Cincinnati National League club, bears the distinction of being released by a ball club because he hit the ball too hard.

It happened several years ago. Mitchell read accounts of men becoming millionaires in a single day in Alaska when the gold fever hit the country, and decided that he ought to be able to pick up some of that gold by playing ball.

When Mike got to Alaska he found the Alaska league with ball parks surrounded with fences of snow. Mike joined one of the teams.

Three times in the first game Mike swatted the ball so hard it became buried in the snow fence. The third time he eluded the sphere so hard it was not found until late in the evening, although picks and shovels were used in the hunt.

The sweater repeated his performance of losing the ball on his second day out. The management got sore and released Mike. Balls were too scarce to be lost. But he was the idol of the Alaskan fans.

WILLIAM BORNEMANN

WILL BE BURIED TOMORROW AFTERNOON AT 2.

Funeral Arrangements Announced Today—Service by the Rev. W. E. Cave.

The funeral of the late William Bornemann will be held tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock at the residence, 713 Madison street. The Rev. W. E. Cave will conduct the service. William Bornemann was 66 years old and a native of Bremen, Germany. He first came to America as a representative of tobacco interests there, and located at New Orleans. About 35 years ago he came to Paducah.

Mr. Bornemann never married until September, 1907, when he was united to Mrs. Jane Stephenson, of Owensboro, whom he had known at New Orleans before her first marriage. They made their home in this city at the residence where the tragedy occurred yesterday.

Mr. Bornemann was a member of Main City lodge, F. & A. M., and the Royal Arch chapter. It is understood that he carried heavy life insurance, and had, besides, property in this city valued at about $8,000.

In spite of the early and generally accepted theory of suicide, the bereaved wife clings to the belief that her husband was shot accidentally. He had been engaged in cleaning his gun, two, besides the 44 calibre Smith & Wesson with which he shot himself. A bottle of oil was on the mantle and there were traces of oil on his fingers, the family declare.

The coroner's jury's verdict was non-committal on that point, merely reciting: "We, the jury, having viewed the remains of William Bornemann from the evidence before us find that the deceased came to his death about 2 o'clock p. m. of this date, from a pistol wound. Cook Husbands, M. F. Griffin, J. Q. Taylor, Fred Roth, Will Heuby and J. D. Moequot."

Coffee to Postum.

The large army of persons who have found relief from many chronic ailments by changing from coffee to Postum as a daily beverage, is growing each day.

It is only a simple question of trying it for oneself in order to know the joy of returning health as realized by an Illinois young lady. She writes:

"I had been a coffee drinker nearly all my life and it affected my stomach—caused insomnia, and I was seldom without a headache. I had heard about Postum and how beneficial it was, so concluded to quit coffee and try it.

"I was delighted with the change. I can now sleep well and seldom ever have headache. My stomach has gotten strong and I can eat without suffering afterwards. I think my whole system greatly benefited by Postum.

"My brother also suffered from stomach trouble while he drank coffee, but now, since using Postum he feels so much better he would not go back to coffee for anything."

Weak Over-worked Women

Who are broken down and made invalids by the drudgery of never ending household cares and duties, or by over-frequent bearing and nursing of children, and many other cares, burdens and strains which the weaker sex have to bear, are deserving of profound sympathy. But while sympathy is commendable what these unfortunate women most need is a good, honest, square-deal Restorative Tonic and Strength-giving Nervine and Regulator—one compounded and carefully adapted to act in harmony with woman's peculiar, delicate, ever sensitive organization.

Who so well fitted to select, carefully proportion the ingredients and compound a remedy for the cure of these distressing and often pain-wracking weaknesses and derangements, as the carefully and thoroughly educated and regularly graduated physician who has had a long and successful experience in treating just this class of cases.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription

THIS MEDICINE IS

THE ONE REMEDY Now, and for over 40 years, sold by druggists for Woman's Peculiar Weaknesses, and Distressing Ailments, gotten up by one having all of the above qualifications.

THE ONE REMEDY which absolutely contains neither alcohol (which to most Women is rank poison) nor injurious or habit-forming drugs.

THE ONE REMEDY which is so perfect in its composition and so good in its curative effects as to warrant its makers in printing its every ingredient, as they do, on its outside wrapper, verifying the same under solemn oath.

In all the above most important particulars, the "Favorite Prescription" stands absolutely alone—in a class all by itself—as woman's most reliable and trust-worthy remedy in time of sickness and distress. It is a pure glyceric extract made from American curative roots, found by long time experience most valuable in curing woman's weaknesses and derangements. The leaders in all schools of medical practice have endorsed each of its ingredients as of the best known remedies for the complicated affections for which it is recommended. These professional endorsements should count for far more than any number of lay testimonials. A booklet full of them sent free on receipt of name and address.

BOASTED OF ROBBING TRAIN

And Cowboy Got Himself Arrested in Colorado.

Denver, Col., Feb. 17.—Suspected of being one of the men who held up the Denver and Rio Grande passenger train near Military Junction Saturday, Cooper Lyman, who claims he is a cowboy and lives in New Mexico, was arrested today and is being held pending investigation.

When searched at the station, Lyman had more than $1,000. Further than to say that he had earned and saved the money, Lyman refused to give any explanation. He admitted that he had not worked for several months.

Lyman's arrest resulted from his own talk. The police say he had been drinking and when asked by the proprietor of the small theater where he got the money he was displaying, Lyman said, "I am a train robber. This is easy money, so let's have a good time."

"One bad thing about paste jewelry," "What's that?" "You can't soak it."—Kansas City Times.

BARRICADED IN REAL ARSENAL

In Wildest Part of Mountains is J. R. Simpson.

All Sorts of Interesting Pranks Are Sold to Be Played By Leaders of Striking Miners.

SAYS A FEDERAL PRISONER.

Frankfort, Ky., Feb. 18.—Barricaded in an arsenal in the wildest part of the mountains near Paint Rock, just across the line of Kentucky in Tennessee, are Jerry Simpson, Reuben West and others indicted by the federal grand jury at Richmond recently for conspiring against the government and the killing of Deputy Marshal Mullins at Stearns on last Christmas Day. This information was given out here today by Kirk Shelton, of Pulaski county, a federal prisoner brought to the county jail by Deputy Marshal George Massingale, of Somerset, who was arrested on the charge of assaulting Massingale along with Dick Turpin and Charles Phelps in the jail at Somerset. Shelton has been arrested, he says, 1,000 times, having served a sentence in the penitentiary here, and was a fugitive from justice from the state and national governments at the time of his arrest. He had been with the men at Paint Rock, and had slipped into Somerset on an errand for them when he was arrested.

That Simpson and his followers will ever be arrested, Shelton does not believe, for, he says, they have equipped themselves with the latest improved arms, consisting of automatic revolvers, rapid-fire rifles and ammunition enough to last them through any reasonable siege. They have plenty of sentinels and followers on guard, and when they are moving around over the mountains they take plenty of men with them, so that they are prepared to fight the battle of their lives. They have no idea of surrendering, and the only way they can be routed is with Gatling guns, for their position is almost inaccessible. Shelton says, too, that Simpson keeps plenty of whisky on hand, and that he is well supplied with money so that there is no danger of the men deserting him and West.

They do not remain at Paint Rock all the time. They are in Kentucky during the day, but go over in Tennessee to their fort during the night. Shelton says that they might be decoyed into a trap during the day, but then it would be a fight for life, as they have revolvers strapped to them in such numbers that they look like they might be walking advertisements for a revolver manufacturer. During the last week Shelton says that Simpson and West received at the fort a revolver the like of which he had never seen before, but which shoots as fast as the person holding it can turn a crank or wheel which is on the side of the revolver near the trigger. The revolver is loaded with dynamite cartridges, and the bullet explodes when it strikes an object. In case of a raid and this revolver was brought into action, one of the bullets would tear a revenue man or a deputy marshal in two if it should strike him, and death would be instantaneous.

Some of the pranks of Simpson were also told by Deputy Marshal Massingale. He said that he was told the other day while traveling on the train between Onida and Somerset by a brakeman that Simpson sometimes meets the train to see if there are any revenue officers on it, for he seems to be looking for trouble. He appeared at the depot at Winfield the other day, evidently having received a tip that the marshals were in the train and were on their way to Paint Rock to capture him. The porter said that Simpson rushed up into the crowd and ordered everybody to clear the way, that he wanted to see who was on the train. The passengers, frightened almost to death, thinking that the train was about to be held up and robbed, threw up their hands and scattered like a lot of scared sheep, while Simpson, with his revolvers in hand and strapped to him, calmly surveyed the train and hunted for the marshals and revenue men. When he was satisfied there was none of them on the train, he questioned the brakeman, who had departed from the train at the station near Winfield, and when given a description of them he left and was soon out of sight.

He recently called up Deputy Marshal George Thompson, at London, and told him that if he would come down to Onida with the warrants for his arrest he and West would surrender, but that he did not propose to surrender or be taken by anyone else. Thompson went to Onida, and when he arrived there he said that Simpson called him up from Silerville and told him to come to that place, for he wanted to surrender there, but when Deputy Marshal Thompson arrived at Silerville, Simpson called him up from Barren Fork, stating that he had decided to surrender there. Thompson, however, decided that an attempt was being made to decoy him into a part of the country off the road, and that he would be ambushed and he gave up the chase, returning to London.

Massingale stated that the report had reached Somerset that United States Marshal John Green, with eight deputies from New York, had started

DOCTOR ADVISED OPERATION

Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Paw Paw, Mich.—"I suffered terribly from female ills, including inflammation and constipation, for several years. My doctor said there was no hope for me but an operation. I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and it made me a well woman."—Mrs. ALVENA SPERLING, 11 Langdon St., Chicago, Ill.

Another Operation Avoided. Chicago, Ill.—"I want women to know what that wonderful medicine, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, has done for me. Two of the best doctors in Chicago said I would die if I did not have an operation, and I never thought of seeing a well day again. I had a small tumor and female troubles so that I suffered day and night. A friend recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and it made me a well woman."—Mrs. ALVENA SPERLING, 11 Langdon St., Chicago, Ill.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has proved to be the most successful remedy for curing the worst forms of female ills, including displacements, inflammation, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, and nervous prostration. It costs but a trifle to try it, and the result has been worth millions to many suffering women.

from Somerset yesterday afternoon to attempt to capture Simpson, and that the report of a big fight was expected in a few days. He knows that Simpson and his followers are fighters, and they do not expect to be taken alive.

Massingale was in the posse of deputy sheriffs who raided the hotel in which the strike promoters were barricaded when Deputy Marshal Mullins was killed. He escaped being killed by Mullins choosing to advance on the house from the front, while he and his men advanced on the rear.

Home Course In Modern Agriculture

XVI.—Farm Buildings

By C. V. GREGORY.

Agricultural Division, Iowa State College

Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association

THE kind of buildings needed on the farm, their arrangement and location and the kind of material to make them of are problems that often perplex the farmer who is just starting out to improve his place. No attempt will be made here to give any specific plans, since the buildings must be constructed to meet the varying requirements of different farms and the still more varying ideas of the owners. A few suggestions, however, may help to solve some of the most troublesome building problems.

Aside from the house, which will be considered in the next article, the most important farm building is the barn. This is usually built as a shelter for the cows, horses and young calves and to provide a storage place for hay. The barn should not be located near enough to the house so that the odor will be objectionable nor too far away, as this makes too many extra steps. About 300 feet is a good distance. If the yards and manure piles are on the side away from the house, as they should be.

The basement type of barn, though in use to some extent, is not very popular, even on farms where it can be easily built. The lower part is damp and dark, and it is difficult to secure proper drainage. These disadvantages make it desirable to construct the barn entirely above ground on a solid foundation. On many farms there are plenty of "hogheads," which can be used as foundation material. The floor should be of cement throughout. The cost is but little more than that of a wooden floor, and it will last several times as long. A cement floor is cold and for this reason should be kept well bedded. If this is done there can be little objection to this kind of a floor, even for horses, although some horse owners prefer to cover the cement with a false floor of plank.

The remainder of the barn may be built of several different materials, of which wood, in spite of its advancing price, is still the cheapest and most convenient. Next in order come cement blocks and tile brick. When installing these are taken into consideration these are even preferable to wood. A good shingle roof is very satisfactory, though one of the many kinds of prepared roofing may be substituted at a saving in cost and will probably last just as long. In form the hip roof is the best, as it costs but little more and adds considerably to the capacity of the haymow. The plan of having the hay come down to the ground in the center of the barn is not economical of space and is liable to cause the barn to spread. It is better to obtain the extra hay room needed by making the sides a little higher.

A small room in the barn which can be used as a workshop for repairing tools, harness and doing other "rainy day jobs" will be found very handy.

It is always best to have the stock face to the outside. This gives them better light and ventilation and keeps the stable walls from getting splattered with manure. If the barn is located on a knoll where water from surrounding ground cannot flow down around it and provision is made for carrying away the water from the roof, little further drainage will be needed. It is wasteful to allow the liquid manure to drain away and be lost, and it causes unnecessary work to drain it into a manure pit and haul it to the places where it is needed in a water tight wagon. A much better plan is to use bedding enough to absorb it all. There will always be plenty of this at hand in the form of straw, shredded fodder and spoiled hay. By this plan all the fertilizing value of the liquid manure will be saved with a small amount of work.

A litter carrier or a wheelbarrow is a great help in cleaning out the stables. When a litter carrier is used the manure spreader may be left standing in the yard and filled directly from the carrier. Whenever it gets full the manure may be hauled out and spread where it is most needed. In this way it reaches the fields with a small amount of loss.

A point that should be looked after in the construction of the barn, and one that is too often neglected, is provision for sufficient light. Not only does plenty of light make the barn a more convenient place to work, but it also keeps the stock healthier by discouraging the growth of bacteria. The horse stable especially should be well lighted, since horses are liable to have their sight injured by being kept in a dark barn.

Along with light should come plenty of ventilation. By having the windows swing inward from the top and providing triangular boards to close the openings at the sides the incoming current of fresh air will be directed upward against the ceiling and distributed over the stable without causing a draft. Cupolas may be placed on the roof to carry off the impure air. A cheaper method is to leave some of the rafters unboxed at the lower ends.

In case there are many dairy cows or young animals to be fed a silo is almost a necessity. It should be located at the end of the barn nearest the cow stable in order to lessen the work of feeding. If having the yard for the young cattle close to the silo they can be fed from it with little extra work.

A silo sixteen feet in diameter and thirty feet high is about the right size for a 100 acre farm. The diameter should always be small enough so that two or three inches can be fed off the top each day. This insures fresh silage all the time. The greater number of silos in use at present are made of wooden staves. These are cheap, and if a good quality of wood is used they will last a long time. Cement and brick silos are practically indestructible, but are rather expensive. A new type of silo that is proving very satisfactory is made of hollow building tile. This material is as cheap as staves and lasts as long as cement.

For the young stock, fattening cattle and sheep cheap sheds furnish ample shelter. These can be made of common boards well battened, with strong cedar posts for a framework. The roof should be water tight. A twelve foot opening on the south will answer the purpose of a door.

These sheds should be on high, well drained ground and must be kept well bedded. When this is done they are fully as good as a more expensive shelter. A separate lambing house will, of course, have to be provided for the ewes as spring approaches.

For the man who is making a specialty of hogs the "colony system" of hog houses is probably the best. For the average farmer, however, the extra amount of work which this system involves more than outweighs its advantages of cleanliness, freedom from disease and keeping the hogs in smaller bunches. On most farms the central hog house comes nearest to meeting the requirements. Along with it a few individual houses are convenient for hauling around to the stubble and clover fields or other places where the hogs may happen to be located.

Little pigs need a great deal of sunlight, and this, together with the liability of hogs to become diseased, makes it imperative that the hog house be provided with plenty of windows. By running it north and south and having a row of pens on each side each pen will receive an equal amount of sunlight. Where the building faces the south the north row of pens does not receive its share of sunlight, and the outside yards on the north of the house are almost always shaded and cold.

The floor, like that of the barn, should be of cement. It is a good plan to extend it out about twenty feet on each side to make feeding floors where the hogs can be fed and watered without getting in the mud. If having all pens and yard partitions movable they can be arranged for sows and litters or for fattening swine, as needed. A feed room in one end of the building where grain can be stored and feed mixed up is a great convenience.

A cornerb should be located close to one end of the feeding floors, so as to save work when hogs are fattening. If steers are fed another crib should be built with one end next to a string of feed bunks, so that the feeder can walk right out into them with the corn when feeding. A double crib with a bin for oats on one side should be placed near the barn. In the winter the driveway may be used for grinding feed.

A good weather proof machine shed should be built on very farm. It may be located almost any place where it will be out of the way. There should be a row of wide doors all along one side so that it will be possible to take an implement out or in without moving everything else in the shed.

All wooden buildings should be kept well painted. Painted wood will last three times as long as that not so treated, to say nothing of the gain in looks.

A little attention to some of these points in locating and arranging the buildings and yards will cut the work of doing chores in half.

Nothing short of a surgical operation will bring out the best there is in some men.

Many a man who is as honest as the day is long wouldn't make a satisfactory night watchman.

"THE OLD SCRATCH."

How the Evil One Came to Be Popularly Known as "The Old Scratch."

One of the many familiar names of his satanic majesty is "The Old Scratch." It is undoubtedly due to the fact that scratching is so disagreeable that people thought it no worse than the evil one. A scalp full of dandruff keeps one scratching all the time; not only disagreeable but considered very inelegant in polite society—as it should be—because one ought to keep the scalp so clean that it would not itch. To cure the scalp of dandruff effectively, use Newbro's Herpicide. It kills the germ that creates the dandruff, which is preliminary to falling hair, and, finally, baldness. No other hair preparation kills the dandruff germ. Herpicide also is a very delightful and effective hair-dressing. Sold by leading druggists. Two sizes, 50c and $1.00. Send 10c in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.—R. W. Walker Co., Special Agents.

NOTICE.

I urgently request all persons indebted to me to make settlement before the first day of May, 1909, as I will after that date bring suit on every unpaid note and account due me. Now your account is to each of you a small matter, while the whole is to me very important. I shall deal with all alike; if you don't pay you may know that you will be sued, whatever your name or color may be. I hate to do this, but I am forced to it as self-defense. If you have not the money and will borrow it to pay me I will deduct 10 per cent from your account, thereby paying the interest myself. Is this not as fair as any sane man can ask?

HITS THE GIANTS HEAVY.

Christy Mathewson Wants $8,000 for the Coming Season.

New York, Feb. 17.—Pitcher Christy Mathewson, the greatest twirler the Giants ever had, has decided to quit baseball forever unless given $8,000 for the coming season.

Hearing that the demand of Mike Donlin for $7,000 for the season is likely to be acceded to by the Giants, Mathewson declared in a letter to Mr. Brush that he considers himself the best player on the team, and that he will not take a salary less than any other player. To make this point clear Mathewson insists that he be given $8,000 for the season.

It is understood that the great player has made up his mind on this matter and that he will not change. So it is possible that the diamond will lose one of the brightest stars at

Are the Cubans grateful? Not in the least. Not for their liberation nor for any of the work that has been done since that period. It is, perhaps, expecting too much of a nation to show gratitude for such extraordinary

PLENTY OF SPORT AT THE KENTUCKY

Paducah Lovers of Athletics
Given a Treat.

Audience Enjoys Wrestling Match
Between Joe Collins and Young Hackenschmidt.

NEXT FRIDAY NIGHT AGAIN

Hungry lovers of athletics enjoyed a treat last night at the athletic exhibitions at the Kentucky theater. The audience applauded the athletics liberally, and the sport bids fair to become as popular in Paducah as it has in Cairo. The early part of the evening was a program between amateurs. In the wrestling "Wild Joe" Collins defeated Young Hackenschmidt.

The exhibition began with a battle royal, four negroes being in the ring, the last one on his feet to be the winner. The negroes mixed it up lively, but one by one they slipped, and Ben Johnson was left in the ring and awarded the purse.

The second event was a six-pound sparring match between Maynard Allen and Sam Graham, and at times the two went together lively. Graham had the height and reach on Allen, but Allen was aggressive the first few rounds. Both tired quickly and the last of the fight was in favor of Graham, who held off Allen at arm's length and fought. The contest was announced a draw.

Garfield Frogge and Leslie Jones sparred six rounds, and the contest was enjoyable. Frogge was the more experienced, and hit Jones whenever desired. Jones was strong and aggressive, and put in a few good blows. Referee Sam Goodman announced the contest a draw.

The Main Event.

The main event of the program was wrestling between "Wild Joe" Collins and Young Hackenschmidt. They agreed on catch-as-catch-can, and barred the strangle hold, beat two in three pinfalls to count. After 20 minutes and 30 seconds of clever work, Collins secured the first fall with a head and English arm-lock. The second throw was secured by Hackenschmidt, who floored Collins in the short time of 3 minutes and 45 seconds by a toe hold and an arm-lock. The final throw went to Collins with a scissors arm and a headlock hold, after wrestling 12 minutes and 15 seconds.

Next Friday night Collins will wrestle Bob Reaks, of Omaha. A six-round sparring contest between Sam Goodman and Garfield Frogge will be pulled off, while Leslie Jones will wrestle Robert Kinney, of Cairo. Also a battle royal will be a feature.

Chief of Police Collins was on the stage last night, with the announced purpose that if the sparring became too rough he would stop it. However, the fighters did not rough it strenuously.

LOCK CANAL THE FEASIBLE KIND

Roosevelt Transmits Engineers' Report.

President Declares That Attack Hereafter on Canal Plans Is An Attack on Building.

THE GATUN DAM IS ALL RIGHT

Washington, Feb. 18.—Any attack made hereafter on the lock type of the Panama canal, according to the opinion expressed by President Roosevelt in his message on the report made by the engineers who recently visited the canal zone with President-elect Taft "is in reality merely an attack upon the policy of building any canal at all." The report, in Mr. Roosevelt's opinion, "shows in clear-cut fashion that the congress were wise in the position they took and it would be an inexcusable folly to change from the proposed lock canal to a sea level canal."

Criticism Out of Order.

"I commend to you," he says to congress, "the most careful consideration of the report. They show that the only criticism that can be made of the work on the isthmus is that there has sometimes been an almost excess of caution in providing against possible trouble. As to the Gatun dam itself they show that not only is the dam safe, but on the whole the plan already adopted would make it necessarily high and strong and accordingly they recommend that the height be reduced by 20 feet, which change in the plans I have accordingly directed."

President Roosevelt says that the engineers who made the report "are all of the men in their profession within or without the United States, the men who are on the whole best qualified to pass upon these very questions which they examined."

Engineers Satisfied.

The engineers' reports as to the Gatun earth dam was the central point of discussion; they gave it, under instructions from Mr. Taft, "first consideration in the light of all new evidence" and they add, "that the type of dam now under construction is one which meets with unanimous approval."

They say they are "satisfied that there will be no dangerous or objectionable seepage through the materials under the base of the dam; nor are they so soft as to be liable to be pushed aside by the weight of the proposed dam so as to cause dangerous settlement. We are also satisfied that the materials available and which it is proposed to use are suitable and can be readily placed to form a tight, stable and permanent dam."

Dams and locks, lock gates and all other engineering structures involved in the lock canal project are "feasible and safe," according to the engineers, "and they can be depended upon to perform with certainty their respective functions."

Lock Canal the Best.

They report that they "do not find any occasion for changing the type of canal that has been adopted. A change to sea level plan at the present time would add greatly to the cost and time of construction, without compensating advantage, either in capacity of the canal or in safety of navigation, and hence would be a public misfortune."

"We do find," they say, "in the detailed designs that have been adopted or that are under consideration, some matters where other arrangements than those now could be worthy of study. As these proposed changes are of a tentative nature and do not in any case affect the main questions herein discussed they are not taken up in this report."

Gatun Dam All Right.

They declare that the "most practical question in the construction of the Gatun dam is the possible slipping and sliding of the materials underneath and in the body of the
